He claimed entire innocence of the organization of the Continental company and described his part in the deal as a mere effort to buy oil.

Three candidates on the Democratic primary ballot, however, had been effective, officials said, in getting men and women of that political faith to the polls to express their preference as between Smith, Walsh and Reed.

It is expected that by May 15, all the houses in the county will be operating with full force. It is said that the quality of the Valencia is very good this year.

Senator Kearney today said she heard Mrs. Rose speak in Los Angeles. "She is a beautiful woman and she was dressed like a princess and arrayed like the Goddess of Liberty. She declared that prohibition was not an issue in the coming elections and that Tammany is a charitable organization which buys food and clothing for the poor persons of New York."

The petition filed with the Orange council was signed by 13 of the 15 registered voters in the territory. The declaration of intention filed with the Santa Ana city council was signed by five residents of the district proposed for annexation to Santa Ana.

URGENT TO CAST WALSH VOTES

The political situation in California at this time is most interesting. The Republic have no fight, as Herbert Hoover is the only candidate here. Hoover is very strongly backed by the Republicans, and should he be elected, then Hoover would be appointed secretary of the treasury. If Hoover is elected we will have just another Coolidge-Mellon regime and Hoover is just as acceptable to the Democrats as he is to the Republicans.

Senator Kearney, at this point, said he had been told that Hoover and his wife were married by a Catholic priest. She supposed the priest was asking, "You imagine a Protestant would vote for a priest?" She said she understood that Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were married suddenly that a Protestant minister could not be found at the time.

There are the Democratic camps in California, there is James W. Reed, Missouri. Jim Reed hates the prohibition amendment with an even hatred. She declared that voted against the 18th and the amendments, the latter being the women's suffrage amendment. She also voted against prohibition in Washington, D. C., she declared.

Reed Ferguson

Another thing that Reed, the speaker declared, was the fact that he fought Woodrow Wilson, and he said, Reed had refused admission to the White House when Wilson was president.

"In the second case have Al Smith, of New York, the standard bearer. Al Smith the arch prohibitionist of the country. He has refused to alibi in New York state and is hoping to have this for president so he can get all the country what he has in New York.

"I am told that not only drinks liquor himself that he drinks to the point of intoxication and that he said his foot on the brass rail blow off the foot," Senator Reed said.

In speaking of F. Walsh, Senator Kearney said he heard that it was who revealed the Teapot, that it was he who did the 18th amendment and the 18th amendment and that Walsh is not only a betrayer from booze, but he neither drinks tea nor coffee.

29 Protestants

She also pointed the fact that, although he is a Catholic, 29 of the 30 delegates in California are Protestants. The only exception being K. K. K.

Mrs. Kearney, who is a delegate to the convention in New York, which she was a delegate to Mississippi. She declared that the delegates actually turned the prostitutes of New York on the convention floor to be the men voters. She said that how she actually had out one woman, whom she seated with the Mississippi delegation.

"I told her: 'The Mississippi delegation can't sit here.' She replied an American citizen can sit where it pleases me. This is the Mississippi and it is made up of the people in Mississippi; you here," she said.

The speaker also said the Smith faction of women to the rooms of both women delegates to the convention. She said the same fact, that the K. K. K. was the convention.

Mrs. Kearney declared the prohibitionists of the world line up with the Republic if that party inserted rank in its platform, but she said.

S. A., ORANGE FACE ANNEXATION BATTLE

at Flower street. The Orange council set the election for Friday, June 1.

Santa Ana petitioners will ask incorporation of property between Main street and a line 130 feet west of North Broadway, extended, running north to within 200 feet of Chapman street and thence west along the 200-foot line to the Santa Ana river.

Thinks Petition Too Early

City Attorney Charles D. Swann expressed the opinion today that a petition could not be filed with Orange until after the official canvass by the city council of Santa Ana, of returns for the annexation election held in the district to the north Wednesday, when voters registered disapproval of annexation to Santa Ana.

It is the contention of the city attorney that filing with the council last night of the notice of declaration of intention to circulate a petition in the territory will take precedence over the Orange petition because that petition was filed before an official declaration by the Santa Ana council of the result of the election.

Lexington Not To Be Accepted Until Repairs Are Made

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Secretary of Navy Wilbur planned to confer with officials of the General Electric company regarding difficulties with electrical apparatus installed by the company in the new airplane carrier Lexington, which underwent tests last week off the Pacific coast.

The trials were discontinued when engine trouble developed and the navy has decided not to accept the vessel until the trouble is repaired.

Later Wilbur said the blades had cracked under the speed of the trials and that as soon as the turbine damage was repaired trials would be resumed.

Gavuzzi Tied For 'Derby' Lap Win

LINCOLN, Illinois, May 1.—Peter Gavuzzi, England, elapsed time leader, and Seth Gonzales, Denver, finished in a dead heat for first place in today's lap of the Fyle trans-continental foot race, covering the 21.6 miles from Springfield, to Lincoln in 3:53:24.

Gavuzzi's elapsed time for the 2,290.7 miles from Los Angeles now is 96:15:11, nearly five and one-half hours less than the time of his nearest rival, Andrew Payne, Charleston, Ohio, who finished in a tie with two other runners for eighth place today.

BULLS SUFFER AS WHEAT TAKES DROP

CHICAGO, May 1.—Bull speculators suffered heavily on the board of trade today as wheat prices plunged downward from their phenomenal rise last week and yesterday, closing from three to four cents lower.

May wheat dropped from its season's high of 17 1/4 to 16 1/4, catching in its sudden decline many small speculators who had bought on the recent rise.

Private reports, which contradicted previous reports of great demand to winter wheat brought on the sudden decline.

BILLY SUNDAY JR. AND WIFE REMARRY

HOLLYWOOD, May 1.—Billy Sunday Jr., son of the noted evangelist, and his second wife, Mae Sunday, formerly of Indianapolis, have been married a second time, friends of the couple announced here today.

The Sundays, who wed more than a year ago in Mexico, were married in Yuma, Ariz., yesterday and were re-married. It was explained here that Sunday and his wife had been married over the Mexican marriage.

The couple will sail for Honolulu on a second honeymoon, it was said.

LINDBERGH MAY FLY TO EUROPE VIA GREENLAND

"I don't want to say anything about that because I don't want to be in position of announcing something that I perhaps cannot accomplish later."

The flight may be made in a Ford tri-motored, all metal airplane, it was learned. Lindbergh probably will be accompanied by Maj. Thomas G. Lanphier, commanding officer of the first pursuit squadron of the army air corps, although, according to information available here, this has not been decided finally.

Formal announcement of the flight may await the return to this country of Henry Ford, who is in Europe. The Ford office in Detroit, however, already intimated that plans for the flight have been completed and an itinerary decided upon.

According to these plans, Lindbergh would stop in Greenland, Iceland and at Craydon, England, before starting on his tour of Europe. The airman spent several months gathering information concerning flying conditions and landing fields in Greenland and Iceland.

Help From Many Sources

Lindbergh and the Ford company had help from many sources in the United States and from several European governments in drawing up plans.

The colonel and Major Lanphier expect to visit every capital and important city in Europe and may go on to Asia by way of India or Russia. Arrangements were made some time ago for a trip to Japan and it is understood that this part of the program has not been changed.

Several official invitations from European governments are waiting the colonel. The Swedish legation already has sent him an invitation from the Royal Aero club of Sweden, asking him to visit the land of his forefathers on his trip.

It is understood a similar invitation is awaiting him at the Danish legation, while the British and German governments have been awaiting formal announcement of the flight before asking him to visit their countries.

There has been an increase of more than 100 per cent in the number of telephones in Chattanooga, Tenn., in 10 years.

Carter De Haven Weeps On Stand In Divorce Trial

LOS ANGELES, May 1.—Carter De Haven, the stage and screen player, wept on the stand today in the court of Superior Judge Yankwich, where his wife, Flora De Haven, seeks alimony pending trial of her divorce suit.

"I've been painted such a cur I hardly know what to do," he sobbed. "All my life I've been in debt in order to keep my family in luxury."

Before he took the stand Mrs. De Haven testified that the actor lavished his money upon Betty Byrd, musical comedy star, but refused to give any to his family. She stated that her husband made as much as $3000 a week.

Judge Yankwich is expected to hand down a decision tomorrow. Mrs. De Haven asked for "reasonable alimony."

Texans Establish Large Dude Ranch

ALPINE, Tex., May 1.—One Texas, located near this little city the most famous old ranches of in the Davis mountains, has been purchased by local business men to be operated as a "dude ranch" for tourists.

Tourists from all parts of the world have made reservations to visit the ranch this summer and winter the life of the pioneer cowboy of the southwestern plains, according to Pete Crawford, veteran cowboy and federal border officer, who has been made manager of the ranch.

Crawford has brought a string of cattle ponies on the ranch. The ranch, Valle la Cienega, covers 35,000 acres. The ranch house equipment is the same as has been used for the past 50 years.

When wearied foot muscles become lax the balance of the whole body is disarranged. On the excellent principle that it is better to keep well than it is to call a doctor, why not give those muscles the gentle, soothing support that the Main Spring Arch provides?

WHEAT SPILLED

Wheat was spilled when a truck overturned at the intersection of Main and Broadway streets, May 1, 1928. The truck, owned by the Santa Ana Flouring Co., was carrying a load of wheat. The driver, who was not injured, fled the scene. The wheat was scattered over a large area of the street. The city council has ordered the wheat to be cleaned up.

LOCAL BANK TO INSTALL VAULT FOR MERCHANTS

Santa Ana merchants who have been worrying over what to do with their money will find their problem solved tomorrow.

This question has long been a source of trouble to certain business men in the county and the richest county in the world. But in the future they will be able to sleep in peace on Saturday nights without worrying about handouts every time they turn over and hear the rustle of paper money under their pillows.

The First National bank will play the role of sandman in the new era about to dawn. It was announced today, Frank J. Was, bank official, revealed plans for the installation tomorrow of a new safe device which will take care of Saturday night and holiday funds in what is claimed to be a burglar proof manner.

The vault will open by means of a special device on the Main street side of the building. Each depositor will have a key which will enable him to turn a cylinder, set flush with the wall, to a point where it is slotted to admit money bags. After dropping in his cash, the merchant must turn the roller until the slot has disappeared and his money has dropped into the safe, before he can take out his key. He then turns away, laughs heartily at any bandits who may be lurking in the shadows, and goes home to slumber. On the next business day he returns, gets his bag and makes a regular deposit.

The safe inside connects with the opening by means of a chute. The vault is protected by reinforced concrete and has a steel door five inches thick. It is said to be the first one of its kind in Southern California and will be installed tomorrow.

RESIDENTS NORTH CITY STILL SEEKING ANNEXATION THEY INFORM COUNCILMEN

Residents in a portion of the northern part of Santa Ana recently proposed for annexation to Santa Ana was today notified with Santa Ana have not admitted defeat by the overwhelming vote cast against annexation in the election held in the district last Sunday, for a group filed with the city council last night notice of intention to circulate a petition for annexation of a portion of the district.

In the rough, the annexed territory will extend from the west side of Main street west to a point 130 feet west of what would be the west line of Broadway were that street opened to Chapman avenue, thence north to within 300 feet of Chapman street, and thence west to the Santa Ana river.

Ten or fifteen residents in the territory were present at the meeting of the council, and five of them signed the notice of intention. The signers were B. E. Northland, Arthur Lowery, J. N. Blood, A. C. Hartwig and S. K. Hersey.

The declaration was filed with the council immediately after canvassing of the vote cast in the annexation election. The law prohibits the circulation in the same territory of a petition within 15 days after an election for annexation.

Semi-official returns of 88 against annexation and 44 for were confirmed.

Confronted with the proposition of placing the curb out of line with the curb south of Washington avenue or removing trees lining both sides of the street on Ross street between Washington avenue and Seventeenth street when paving work is done on that section, the council last night referred to the planning commission a plan proposing that removal of the trees and replanting being included in the work to be done under an annexment district.

It was pointed out to the council that a new law makes it possible to include tree removal and planting in a paving program. Comment was made that exercise of the right would make it possible to have uniform tree planting in the section to be improved.

That Dr. R. A. Cushman contemplates establishing offices at 633 North Broadway in a residence owned by Mrs. Edith Thelan was revealed by an application by the physician for an annexation to utilize the building for that purpose. The property is in the apartment zone and it is necessary to change the location to business in order to make the property available. The council and city planning commission next Monday evening will hold a public hearing on a proposal to change the west side of the street, between Sixth and Eighth streets, to the business zone.

With a large sized protest filed, indications point to a battle before the council when public hearing is heard on the matter of creating a district in the southeast portion of the city for installation of an ornamental lighting system. The council already has acted on a petition for a system with King standards, such as are in use on Broadway and East and West Fourth street. While the protest has been filed, consideration of it legally cannot be made until May 28, the time set for the public hearing. A petition was also filed last night asking that a system be installed in the district with Mar-

What Most Americans Don't Know About Russia

The Red's Powerful Trade Czar, In His First Official Message Explains Third Internationale's Peculiar Place in Soviet Affairs

Professor Jerome Davis of Yale Divinity School . . . found powerful Soviet Commissar Mikoyan pleasant, brilliant.

By JEROME DAVIS

MOSCOW.

THIS is one of the most important interviews I have ever secured, and it has taken me nearly a month to get it in final shape.

It is an official statement by Anastas Ivanovich Mikoyan, commissar of foreign and domestic trade of the Soviet government, who, at 32 years of age, is one of the most important members of the Soviet government. Upon him, in many ways, the entire fate of the Soviet government rests. He is also a member of the all-powerful political bureau of the Communist party and is a friend of Stalin. He has had an adventurous career as fascinating as any of the tales in the Arabian Nights.

He was born into a poor workingman's family in Tiflis, Caucasus. He first became a full member of the Communist party at only 20 years of age. At the outbreak of the Revolution he was sent to Baku as a party worker and soon became secretary of the Bolshevik committee in Tiflis. In 1918 he was a commissar at the front against the advancing Turks.

When the Turks succeeded in capturing Baku he was freed with a few other arrested Bolsheviks. Later, when the English took the city, he was again arrested by them. He declares it was a miracle that he was not shot along with 26 of his comrades who paid the supreme penalty. Until March, 1919, he was kept in various jails by the English and only upon the demand of workers in Baku was he finally released.

IN MAY, 1919, while the English were still occupying Baku, Mikoyan organized and directed a general strike. He was finally arrested with his entire committee. He managed to escape from the prison before he was shot, but was rearrested soon afterwards. Fortunately, this time they did not know his real identity—he was using an assumed name. He was exiled to Grushin but no sooner had he reached there than he secretly set out for Baku, where he again renewed his illegal work among the workers.

At the end of 1919 Mikoyan was chosen a member of the Caucasian regional committee of the party and the same year managed to smuggle his way out by boat to Astrakhan and thence up the Volga to Moscow. He personally thus reported to the central committee of the Communist party on the possibilities of an armed uprising in the Caucasus.

Immediately after delivering his report, he returned to Baku to continue illegal work. With the victory of the Soviet government in the Caucasus in 1920 he was sent to Nijni Novgorod, where he worked until 1922 as secretary of the Gubernia committee of the party.

From 1922 till the fall of 1926 he was secretary of the North Caucasian regional committee of the party. Besides the other offices which he now holds, he is a member of the central committee of the Communist party.

In spite of a life of prison, exile, and revolutionary activity, no one could have a more peaceful or friendly appearance than Mr. Mikoyan. He is a man of great personal charm, brilliant mind, and large executive ability. One feels at once at home in his presence and I listened intently to his rapid-fire conversation for over two hours. He is reputed to have made the commissars of trade more efficient than it has ever been, doing for Russia what Herbert Hoover has done for the United States.

THIS is the first time such an official interview on the Communist Internationale has been given, and it is an exclusive statement. It could well be headlined all over the United States since it is in a sense an official message to America.

In order to be sure that it was entirely accurate I had Mikoyan read over his statement and make changes in the copy as I had written them.

The first question I put to him was this: "From your point of view, what is the objective of the Communist Internationale, or Komintern? Does its theoretical program mean the overthrow of foreign governments by force, or practically mean merely giving assistance to disastituted groups, which are being exploited in such countries as China, Bessarabia and elsewhere?"

Mikoyan's answer was brief: "The Soviet government," he said, "must not be identified with the Komintern and I, as a member of the government, cannot speak in the name of the Komintern, which has on many occasions openly reiterated its program and its aims."

Having thus indicated that the Third Internationale and the Soviet government were distinct, I then sought to find out why the Soviet tolerates the "revolutionary" activities.

"It is known," I said, "that the Komintern is located in Moscow, that it is sending small amounts of money and sometimes agents of the Communist party to other countries. It is the aim of the Communist parties of other countries to seize power by violence, overthrowing the capitalist governments. Naturally, this is furthering the revolutionary movement in China, India, Germany and other countries. If the Soviet government wants to be left alone," I asked, "why does it not leave other countries alone? Why does the Soviet government tolerate the existence of the Komintern in Moscow?"

"The Communist Internationale," Mikoyan replied, "as I pointed out in my answer to the first question, exists by itself, apart and independent from the Soviet government. It is difficult to understand on what 'principles of freedom and justice' the Komintern should not be permitted to remain in Moscow."

"The Komintern does not receive any financial aid from the Soviet government. We have enforced the strictest laws against any kind of propaganda by agents of the Soviet government in any country and anyone who would violate these rules would be discharged. Even the raid by the English police on the Arcos and the Russian trade delegation in London proved bourgeois governments of various countries are compelled to tolerate the existence of legal Communist parties.

"The Soviet government is asked to exercise pressure upon the Communist organizations of other countries in order to limit their activities and their propaganda. In addition to the fact that the Komintern and the Communist organizations are not subordinated to the Soviet government, such acts would actually mean interference in the internal affairs of foreign states. The Soviet government which has not allowed heretofore, and will not allow henceforth, any interference in its internal affairs, is in general against the interference of one state in the internal affairs of another."

HERE Mikoyan took occasion to draw a parallel between the activities of Communist sympathizers in America and Irish Sinn Fein sympathizers in America.

"We cannot be induced," he said, "to restrict our workers' organizations in expressions of sympathy or in assistance to Communists of other countries, just as the American government could not keep their citizens from sympathizing with and helping, let us say, the Sinn Fein party in Ireland. I know, for instance, that a loan was obtained in America to help the Sinn Fein party. The Soviet government has given no financial aid to the Komintern and the Communist parties of other countries. "It is true that some of the Soviet officials are at the same Anastas Ivanovich Mikoyan . . . one-time prisoner, exile, Red revolutionary. . . . Russia's fate is much in his hands.

looks upon as greatly misunderstood aims and purposes, as I decided to ask him what I considered a most important question, one that thousands of persons interested in the Russian situation would like to have answered. It was this:

"Inasmuch as the Soviet government and the Internationale are both under the control of the Communist party, is it not true that the policies of the Soviet government and the Internationale are, and will continue to be, identical?"

For a moment, the man who directs the commerce of Russia within his country and with the rest of the world hesitated.

THE question," he said, "is not quite clear to me. The Soviet government is at the present time composed chiefly of members of the All-Union Communist party, but the Soviet government should by no means be identified either with the Communist party or with the Komintern. The majority of the English government are members of the Conservative party, which, however, does not lead to the assertion that the British government and the Conservative party is the same thing. The same is true of your own government which is composed of members of the Republican party, yet it acts quite separately from the Republican party."

"It is also said that Soviet officials, who belong to the Communist party, are supporting by their membership dues the Communist party and, through the latter the Komintern. I do not see that there is anything in this which should raise questions in anyone's mind. I was told that Mr. Coolidge, President of the United States, is donating money for foreign missionaries. It is believed by many people that the foreign missionaries have provoked unrest in China and that, in particular, during the 'Boxer' rebellion the Chinese tried to rid themselves of foreign missionaries."

"Even though Mr. Coolidge, or his government officials, have been helping financially Chinese missionaries, the American government is by no means responsible for the deeds of missionaries, inasmuch as this financial aid was a private affair of the members of the American government, and inasmuch as this subsidy was not expended from the funds of the United States treasury. The same applies to the Soviet government. Inasmuch as the Soviet government has not been extending any financial aid to Communist organizations from the state treasury, the Soviet government cannot be held responsible for the actions of Communist organizations."

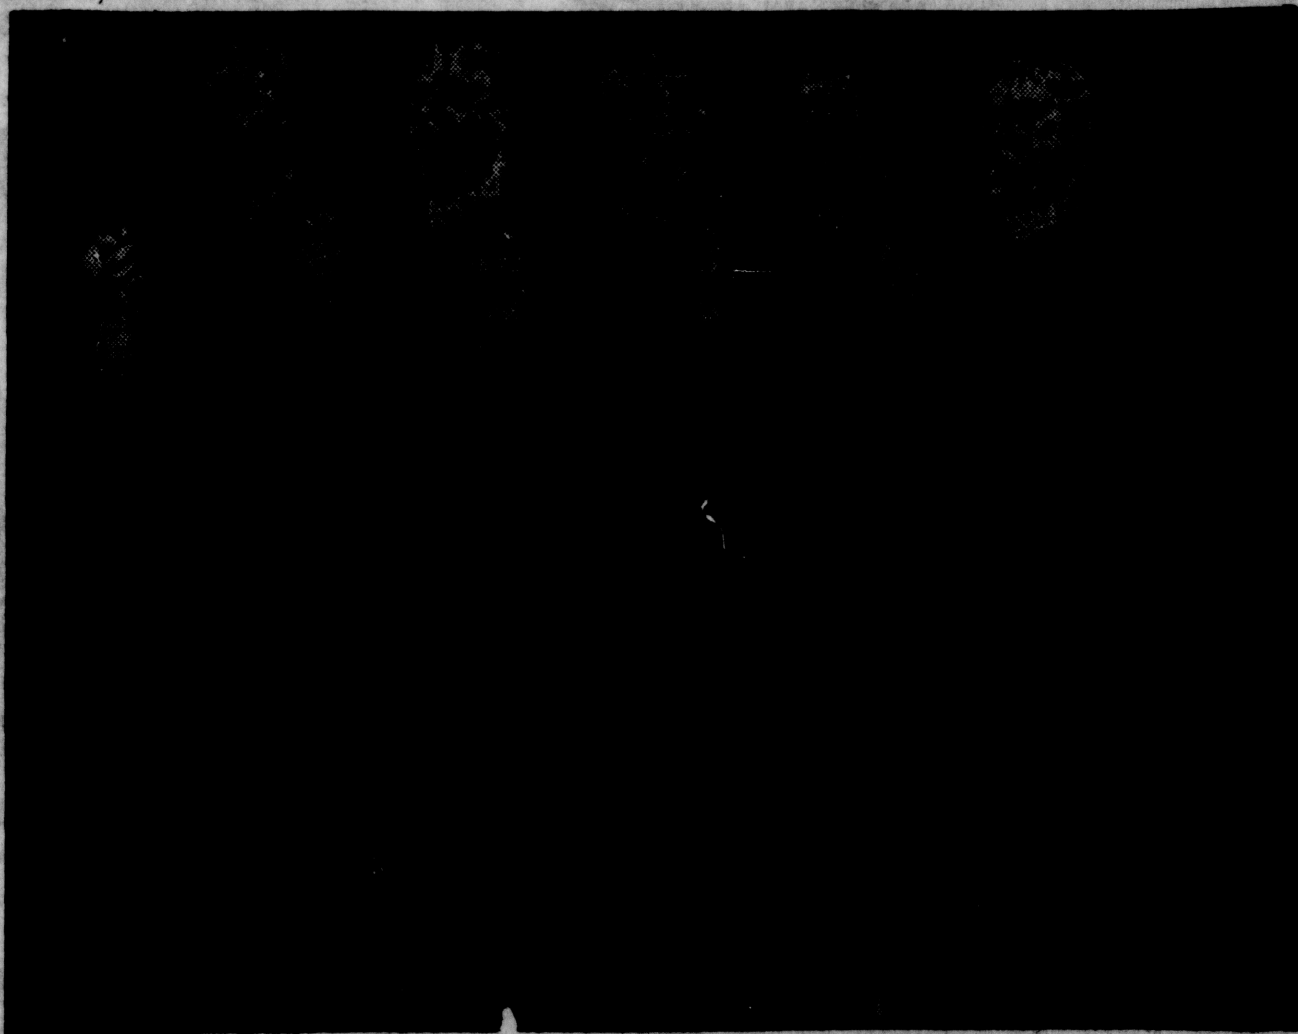

"What I have said," Mikoyan emphasized, "will continue you that America has been given false information about our policy. All the propaganda against the Komintern and its coming connection with the Soviet government is merely a pretext. Had the Communist Internationale chosen another country for its headquarters, our enemies would surely have found some other pretext to hinder the building of a Socialist state in the Union of Socialist Soviet republics."

BEFORE closing, I want to remind you that at the Geneva conference of 1927 the question of the possibilities of peaceful co-operation and the co-existence of the capitalist and the socialist systems of national economy was discussed. The conference, having fully and thoroughly analyzed this problem, decided: "Considering the importance of peaceful trade and the desirability of obtaining from politics, the conference thinks the participation of members of all countries present—irrespective of all the differences in their economic systems—is a happy sign for future peaceful trade relations between all nations."

"One of the best means to check all the falsehoods which are being spread against the Soviet Union by all its enemies is the maintenance of direct contact between American business men and the Soviet Union and their visiting our country, where they can see for themselves the vast possibilities for economic rapprochement between these two countries. This is especially true, since there are no antagonistic interests and no direct cause for conflict involved."

"The experience of many Americans, who have visited this country for business purposes, has shown that upon their return to America they gave up their former prejudices against the Soviet Union and, while they did not hide the shortcomings which still exist in our economic structure, they gave the full and frank contradiction to all the assaults and calumnies spread broadcast against the Soviet Union."

"I believe that if representatives of our trade and industry will, on the other hand, visit America it will help us to learn from and know the achievements of American science and technique, as well as facilitate the establishment of normal trade and cultural relations with the United States, which will be beneficial to both countries."

the fact that neither the trade delegation nor Arcos is in any way connected with the Third Internationale.

The triumph of labor as depicted on a poster displayed all over Russia during the recent celebration of the tenth anniversary of the Soviet regime.

"SOME time ago," Mikoyan continued by way of illustration,

"the British government made a protest against the transmission of money by the Russian trade unions to the striking English coal miners. The Soviet government cannot interfere when the workers or the people of the Soviet union wish to collect and transmit money for kindred organizations abroad which are in need of money to carry on their fight for the betterment of their conditions."

"A similar collection was made in the United States, of course, not to the same extent, but it did not occur to England to send any notes of protest to the American government on this account. The only country to whom England sent a hostile note was the Soviet Union."

"It is impossible," Mikoyan insisted, "for the Soviet government to interfere in the mutual relations between the Komintern and the Communist parties of other countries. Communist parties exist in all countries. In a number of countries Communist carry on their work quite openly and without interference, having their representatives in the Parliament."

"It is therefore quite incomprehensible why the Soviet government alone should place obstacles in the way of the activities of Communist organizations, when even the conservative time members of the Komintern, but in this respect they do not differ from members of other governments. Mr. Vandervelde, prime minister of Belgium, is at the same time one of the leaders of the Second Internationale. When he goes to the League of Nations, he appears there at one and the same time as head of the Second Internationale and as prime minister of Belgium. Yet this does not raise objections from anyone."

In concluding his answer to this question, Mikoyan referred to the fact that the Soviet government in its notes to foreign powers has repeatedly emphasized the falsity of the assertion of identity between the Soviet government and the Third Internationale. He cited, for instance, part of the official note of the assistant people's commissar of foreign affairs to the British minister of foreign affairs of September 27, 1921:

This reads as follows: "The Russian government wishes to take this opportunity of emphasizing once more, as it has repeatedly done before, that the Third Internationale, for very obvious reasons, chose Russia as the headquarters for its executive committee, this being the only country giving full freedom for the spreading of Communist ideas to Communists."

Throughout the interview Commissar Mikoyan had been most patient and courteous and seemed inclined to answer all my questions as frankly and clearly as possible. He seemed anxious to have America understand so many things that he

Hooks and Slides

By winning the annual renewal of the Boston marathon, Clarence De Mar, the veteran New England distance runner, automatically placed as the No. 1 man on the Olympic squad that the United States will send to Amsterdam this summer.

At an age which is considerably advanced in athletics and in a trade as a printer, which is not exactly contributory to running form, De Mar is really a remarkable athlete. He no doubt is the best distance runner in this country, but that is not a nation of distance runners.

Highly creditable though his victory was in the hard Boston test, De Mar should not be given a military duty of winning the Olympic marathon. The amount of ground covered in each race is the same, but the terrain is different. The Boston race is an adequate test, but all important climatic conditions cannot make a just comparison.

It is not too much to expect, however, that De Mar may do better in Amsterdam than he did in Paris in 1924, even though he is four years older.

Weather conditions cannot be more distressing in Amsterdam than they were in Paris for the running of the 1924 marathon. The spectators in the sheltered stands on the day of that cruel race were almost suffocated by the heat, and it was almost a miracle that fatalities did not visit the competitors.

If ordinary weather prevails in Amsterdam, conditions ought to be almost alike to the Boston race and more to the liking of the American competitors.

Jole Ray, who never previous in his career had run much more than a mile, did an astounding thing in finishing third in the Boston race. Even though he was out on his feet and in misery with blistered, torn feet, the little Chicago runner made of himself a strong candidate for the Olympic squad.

He intends to enter the Long Beach marathon, the next big test, and if he finishes as well up as he did in the Boston race he will win a place on his third Olympic team.

Jole never was modest in admitting his class, and if you listen to him you will become convinced that he not only is going to make the team but that he is going to win the race in Amsterdam.

Ray, in changing his game from a middle-distance runner to a marathoner almost overnight, performed one of the sensations of years, but it is not the only stunt of its kind on record.

Hannes Kolehmainen, the great Finnish runner, who would have been a Nurni in his day with the same kind of publicity Nurni was given, gave up shorter distance running when his legs slowed up on him and succeeded in becoming an Olympic marathon winner.

Ray is a constant reminder of what a great fighting heart will do for an athlete. He always was a great competitor when he was in his prime as the premier American mile and one of the very best in the world, but he had so much run in him that he didn't have to show his heart. He showed it in the Boston marathon as heart seldom has been shown before.

MARANVILLE REFORMED

"Rabbit" Maranville, who tied Babe Ruth several years ago in a contest to decide who was baseball's best little head boy, is back with the St. Louis Cardinals and the management expects to board and room him through the entire season. Mr. Branch Rickey's coach observed the Rabbit during the winter months and reported to the boss that Maranville had trained all during the off season and had become a first-class example for the youth of the land. On this tip the Cards let Jimmy Cooney go to the Braves.

The Rabbit always was criticized for his conduct, but if some of our noted lecturers and preachers had gone through the tragedies that the Rabbit did in his private life they might not have been able to bear us as well as he did.

California Angling Army Seeks Trout Limit

SEASON OPENS IN NEARLY ALL OF DISTRICTS

Commissioner Here Urges Co-Operation of Fishing Folk With State Patrol

The great day has arrived when California's great army of anglers will proceed forth to snare a limit of the elusive trout in the far flung waters of the state.

The season opened this morning in all of the Southern California districts except No. 4, comprising Inyo county, which will not be open until May 30. The season closes October 30.

E. A. Chan, deputy state fish and game commissioner operating out of Santa Ana, emphasized the fact that Devil's canyon and Bear canyon streams in Los Angeles county, Holy Jim creek in Orange county, Middle Cottonwood lake in Inyo county and Reverse creek in Mono county have been closed to fishing.

At the same time Chan took occasion to correct the report, erroneously circulated, that June lake in Mono county is closed. June lake is open to fishing, Chan reported.

"The division warns that a license must first be secured by all anglers," Chan said. "The limit of trout is 25, or 10 pounds and one fish. Fishermen must remember that it now is unlawful to have in their possession black bass less than nine inches in length. Not more than 15 black bass may be taken in a single day."

"The state has employed more patrolmen than ever this year to enforce the laws. Co-operation with the field forces will help the conservation program of the division. It will help the anglers and be highly conducive to the successful opening of the season."

ORANGE ANGLER WINS IN FISHING CONTEST

Glenn Minor, Orange R. D. No. 2, was the first to bring a limit catch of trout to the local store of Montgomery Ward and company, 514 North Main street, and was presented with a trout basket of split willow, bound with leather, according to Gilbert D. Kettle, manager.

Minor reported at the store bright and early, Kettle said, with his mess of fish caught in the Trabuco canyon.

Beaver Boss Working On Club Change

Although the situation is beginning to look a bit more promising than it did, Ernie Johnson is still having his troubles with the lowly Portland Beavers, who train at this spring at the Orange County Fair grounds.

Johnson already has released three of the players who were seen in action here, "Burr" Wetsell, pitcher; Joe Melina, third baseman, "Babe" Biebos, outfielder. He has notified the Chicago White Sox that Portland will return to them like Davis, shortstop, who has made a disappointing showing both at bat and in the field.

Meanwhile Johnson has been playing regularly himself in an effort to effect a winning combination. At various intervals he has had his infielders occupying various positions and he hopes they have at last begun to click. The Beavers were to open against Seattle today.

SAINTS DEFEAT GARDEN GROVE BALL CLUB, 8-4

Making most of their base knocks count for something, the Santa Ana high school baseball team defeated Garden Grove, 8 to 4, in a practice encounter at Garden Grove yesterday. The Saints will play Anaheim here tomorrow afternoon and invade Alhambra for a Coast Preparatory league spat Saturday afternoon.

Johnny Willcutt, the young pitcher who probably will draw the assignment at Alhambra, worked two frames against Garden Grove and was touched for two of the Groves' four tallies. Bob Drysdale finished the undertaking satisfactorily. He had only one bad round, the seventh, when the Chili-peppers grouped three hits for one run.

Stroud, Garden Grove's slinger, performed altogether creditably also. The Saints could do just enough with him to score about once an inning, largely on Stroud's wildness.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 1.—Andrew Payne, the Clarence, Okla., youth who set the pace for the Pyle cross country runner recently until Peter Gavuzzi knocked him, was lagging Gavuzzi by nearly five hours today.

Gavuzzi, the Southampton England, entrant, finished second yesterday's 34 mile run from Vienna, while Payne came in tenth. The Anglo-Italian's time was 20:00. John Cain, Pasadena, N. J., won the race in 1:04:00.

WARD EDMONDS

Stanford University Trio, Sons of Wealth, re Real Athletes

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, May 1.—Just three "little rich boys," supposedly born to every pampering practice—but they are blazing outstanding paths in western athletic fields. Each is 19. Each will some day step into a big fortune. But their efforts are devoted largely to trying to make America's 1936 Olympic games team.

The three juniors at Stanford are Ward Edmonds, son of a Southern California banker; Fred Zombro, son of a Los Angeles bank executive, and Herbert Fleishhacker, Jr., of San Francisco, whose father is one of the leading financial figures in the west.

Many see in the slightly-built Edmonds the next world pole vault champ. Duelling recently with Lee Barnes, Pacific coast ace, he crossed at 14 feet 2 inches but, in descending, brushed the bar with his elbow. His father gave him a snappy roadster when the lad made 13 feet six inches at the I. C. A. A. in Philadelphia last year. He'll get a better car if he sets a record.

Zombro recently set 24 feet 10.1 inches as a new coast broad jump record. As a sophomore, he placed fourth in the I. C. A. A. last year. He is expected to be DeHart Hubbard's strongest competitor at Amsterdam.

Fleishhacker has been having the shot around 46 feet 5.1 inches. Under the tutelage of "Dink" Templeton, Stanford coach, he bids fair to be up among them next season.

Fleishhacker has other claims to fame, though. Stanford will never forget his toss of a forward pass to the score in a crucial last minute of a hectic football game with U. S. C. Edmonds also is a golfer who qualifies in most competitions.

PEEK'S MARKET FINISHES FAST, DOWNS SOLONS

Manufacturing nine runs in the last two innings, Arnold Peek's market crashed into the win column in the Santa Ana Twilight league with a 13 to 5 victory over the Courthouse at Lincoln park yesterday.

Up until the sixth, the clubs were proceeding along at a modest pace, deadlocked at 3 to 3, and none of the hitters were taking undue liberties with either pitcher, Orlyn Robertson for the Butchers or "Spiker" Spicer for the Parliamentarians.

An error let Peek get to first in the sixth, however, and when Wallace followed with a home run the Meat-cutters were off on a savage awaiting ory that lifted the cloud of uncertainty which had surrounded the ordeal. The market men marked four times in the sixth and five times in the seventh, spoiling a perfectly sound pitcher's duel.

Two undefeated contenders, the Auto Club of Orange County and the City Hall, clash this afternoon.

The Shell Oil and the Smart and Finals collide tomorrow. The box score:

'Red' Guyer To Captain Dons In '29

Maurice ("Red") Guyer, the flaming haired streak of the Santa Ana Junior college underpath, will captain the Don track squad next season.

Guyer was honored by his teammates prior to their participation in the Raisin Day track meet at Fresno, in which the Santa Anas tied for second in the Class B division.

At the same time, the Dons named Gerald ("Pete") Twist, hurdler, captain of this year's crew.

Guyer, moving here a year ago from Chillicothe, Ill., entered junior college last fall and made Coach Bill Cooke's grid varsity as a halfback. His improvement on the cinders was nothing less than sensational as he was timed in 9.3 seconds in the 100 yard dash within a month after the season opened.

BLAHOLDER IN FIRST VICTORY FOR ST. LOUIS

George Blaholder, Orange county's only contribution to the "big show," pitched and won his first full major league baseball game for the St. Louis Browns yesterday.

Working easily and keeping his 10 hits beautifully scattered, the husky Garden Grove right hander, a product of the Orange County Harbor league, downed the Cleveland Indians at Cleveland, 10 to 3. Cleveland could not come until the last of the ninth when Blaholder, shielded by a 10-run lead, eased up for a bit.

Blaholder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Blaholder, has started two other American league contests this season but yesterday's was the first he finished. In both of the other games, which were close, he was lifted for pinch-hitters.

Blaholder was with Tulsa in 1937, leading all Western league pitchers in games won and lost. He is one of the Browns' first string chucks now. He has not lost a game and has yet to be hit hard. In his first two starts other pitchers received credit either for the victory or the defeat.

J. C. Girls Begin Play For Crown

Unable to muster a complete team, the J. C. girls' basketball team at Santa Ana Junior college went down in defeat before the Ward Knobs in the first of the series of three games to determine the championship of the college.

Four of the regulars on the Knobs team were unable to play in yesterday's fray with the result that they were defeated by a score of 26 to 2.

MINNEAPOLIS SOUND WINS HOCKEY SERIES

HOLLYWOOD, May 1.—Although Minneapolis lost to the Hollywood Millionaires, 4 to 3, last night in their final contest, the Million won the five game series, 11 goals to 24.

Each team won two games and lost two.

The goal that gave the American millionaires victory was scored in the eighth of the final game. Goals by Paul and a goal by Al Anderson gave the Million a 3-2 lead and the game.

Four of the regulars on the Knobs team were unable to play in yesterday's fray with the result that they were defeated by a score of 26 to 2.

SPORTSMATTER

FRANK CITY

The death of one's grandmother long has been recognized as the funeral custom for attending the ball game. In the case of Percy Lee Jones of Santa Ana, the custom may turn out to have quite the opposite effect.

Percy Jones' grandmother passed on, the star southpaw pitcher of the Chicago Cubs inherited $25,000. This occurred a fortnight ago, when Jones was several days pitched ball games for his club, inheriting a fortune which would buy the ball club for which he plays, the ball matter seems to be better than ever as a hired hand.

McCordy was worried when he heard of his crack left-handers inheritance. The club need Percy, and they don't care whether he is broke or not. If Jones should decide to leave the club and enjoy his wealth at his home, it might mean the loss of the National League pennant to Chicago. Otherwise, as everyone knows, the Cubs have an excellent chance of grabbing the pennant for the first time in nearly a decade.

Inheriting $25,000 is something few of us have a chance to do, and each man's reaction probably would differ from that of his fellow. In the case of Percy Jones, a certain inherent phlegmatism seems to have come to his rescue at the critical moment.

Instead of losing his head, Jones set in to pitch winning ball for Chicago. When he took control of the situation, the Cubs had been losing away ball games through infield errors. Percy pitched so ably that the opponents weren't able to hit balls hard enough for even a Chicago infielder to fumble. The result was an immediate rise of the Cubs in the percentage column.

It probably is difficult for a man worth half a million to worry about his club's gate receipts, his own salary or a cut in the world series. But Percy Jones seems to be a natural ball player who just can't help going to the hill and trying his best to bring his team home in front.

The Chicago Cubs have an excellent chance of winning the National League pennant this year. Already it has been demonstrated that the Pittsburgh Pirates can be beaten and that the St. Louis Cardinals pitching staff is not infallible. The New York Giants do not really count at this stage in the race, for all they get out in front at the start. The Cincinnati Reds are through; the Boston Braves have crumbled already. The Brooklyn Robins never were anywhere. Why speak of the Phillies? The Cubs are the team to watch.

Now the Cubs, because of their weak infield, need every winning pitcher on their staff. The way Percy Jones has started out indicates he is a winner. There is Charley Root, who, for all he has encountered difficulties this early in the season, can be counted on for plenty of victories.

"Shrimp" Slade, Art Nehf and Guy Bush are winning pitchers. But the defection of Percy might make all the difference between a pennant and fourth place. For all his half million, he has elected to pitch.

Jones won seven games for the Chicago Cubs last season and lost eight. His performance this year have indicated that he will do much better before he retires from the diamond to enjoy the wealth he recently acquired.

Campus Comment

Now that California again has defeated Washington in their annual race, the boys who like their crew races are waiting for Pennsylvania to dip its ears in a race to see just what Mr. "Busty" Callow has done.

Callow hardly can be expected to put out an outstanding crew this year at Pennsylvania, but it won't be many years, if he is allowed to handle things his own way, before the Penn crew will be dangerous every time they take to the water.

It took a very attractive offer to get Callow to leave his post at Washington and this attractive offer was made by the Penn officials merely because Callow had a very nice reputation as a coach of crews.

In less than a month, Callow's crew at Pennsylvania will be seen in action against Yale and Columbia. Perhaps, it might be added that Columbia and Yale have very excellent crews and have great hopes of representing the United States in the coming Olympic games.

Suppose Callow's crew surprises these two powerful opponents? It hardly is likely that the Penn crew will, but if they do, Callow will be hailed far and wide by Penn alumni as a savior to Penn crew history. And if his crew is not so much—well, he has had a lot of obstacles to overcome in his new job and one can't make championship crews overnight even though one is ever so good at this business of coaching.

One of the most prominent candidates for the Olympic berth this year is Frank Howell, captain of the California team. He is a lightweight and for the past two years has won the championship of the Pacific coast. He has 50 consecutive wins to his credit since he enrolled at the Berkeley institution.

Two of the most famous half-brothers in the middle west this past season were Glenn Frensch and "Sam" Howell, of Nebraska. Frensch received All-America notice. Now, Frensch is taking the part of a genuine Italian maiden who is violently in love with her sweetheart, Mr. Howell, in the annual production of the dramatic club at Nebraska.

The St. Louis Cards have signed Kelly "Duke" Fothergill, pitcher and captain of Kansas this year, to a contract and he will report when he graduates in June. Several big league clubs were after Fothergill when not pitching. Fothergill plays first base for the Kansas team. He is one of his best hitters of his conference.

ARMOUR SEEKS 72-HOLE MATCH WITH COMPTON

By GENE SARAZEN

(Written for the United Press)

SANDWICH, England, May 1.—Another American professional, Tommy Armour, has challenged Archie Compston for a 72-hole match but thus far the great English player has not accepted.

Slas Newton, an American sportsman, backed Tommy in his challenge of the conqueror of Walter Hagen, the match to be played for a thousand pounds sterling—about $5000.

Tommy is in great shape and is hopeful of meeting Compston, who displayed such marvelous golf against Hagen Friday and Saturday, giving Walter the worst defeat he has taken since he became one of the leading professionals.

Most of the American professionals here are getting acclimated for the coming British matches. Hagen arrives today to start practice over these pretty courses.

Yesterday Armour, Jim Barnes, Bill Mehlhorn and Larry Nabholz played the Princes course to familiarize themselves with the various hazards and the roll of the grounds. They showed up well. (Copyright, 1928.)

"It was this way," Kaiser said, "my wife telephoned that our little boy was very sick, so I stepped heavily on the accelerator. But when I got home I found out that the only thing wrong with the child was that a bee had stung him."

WRECKAGE OF LOCKHART'S DEATH MACHINE

Death rode faster than 200 miles an hour to overtake Frank Lockhart, racing king, at Daytona Beach, Fla., the other day. The above telephoto picture shows the wreckage of Lockhart's heavy 32-cylinder racing car after it had struck a ridge in the sand at 200 miles an hour, plunged high into the air and rolled over several times. Lockhart, hurled clear of the wreck, died without regaining consciousness. Several newspaper men narrowly escaped death as the machine soared over their heads. Lockhart was attempting to set a new auto speed record.

But real diplomats at New Haven have steered Yale through so nicely that Yale has won all the glory for real sportsmanship.

There are clever men in the athletic council at Yale. Recently the swimming and water polo coach at Princeton quit the squads and left them without a trainer or coach for the important meets remaining on the schedule.

Yale offered the loan of her assistant coach and it was accepted by Princeton. John McGraw would fraternization, but it won't hurt short at such a tendency toward any of the college boys concerned.

M. E. CONCLAVE IS OPENED IN KANSAS CITY

By IRWIN FENRITE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 1.—Observance of the holy sacrament of the Lord's supper today marked the opening session of the 59th general quadrennial conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Side by side at the double communion rails representatives of all the nations of the world bowed their heads in prayer and partook of the bread and wine symbolizing the flesh and blood of the crucified Christ.

This service struck the spiritual keynote of the meeting.

Never before in the history of Methodism has a general conference thus been opened. It was believed that with the 875 delegates and thousands of visitors who compose the general conference, it would be impossible to stage such a massive ceremony under a single roof.

Convention hall, where the various sessions of the general conference will be held throughout the rest of May, was fitted gorgeously for the event. The auditorium was cathedral-like in its splendor.

Following the service, the board of temperance, prohibition and morals met to plan a crusade for prohibition support and rigid standards of morality.

"Prohibition at its worst is better than liquor traffic at its best," Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the board, said, in commenting on the business to come before the committee.

The general conference in all probability will be asked to pass a resolution urging Methodists of this country to oppose "wet" candidates for public office.

FINE PLACENTIA MAN

PLACENTIA, May 1.—Theodore Morales, tried in the city police court by Judge Tom E. Pickrell, was given a $50 fine and a 30-day suspended sentence Saturday. Morales was arrested on the complaint of A. E. Woodward and the evidence showed that the defendant had annoyed women and had spent his time loafing on the streets. The jail sentence was suspended on his promise to maintain proper behavior.

H. D. CHAMBER PLANS ORANGE SHOW EXHIBIT

HUNTINGTON BEACH, May 1.—George W. Reid, manager of the California Valencia Orange show, accompanied by Mr. Reid, advertising manager of the show, and Mr. Parker, artist engaged in designing exhibits, appeared before the chamber of commerce at its noon luncheon yesterday and outlined in a general way an appropriate exhibit for Huntington Beach.

The enlarged aerial picture of Huntington Beach, which the chamber of commerce purchased from Jack Colvin recently, will be the central feature of the exhibit. This picture gives a splendid view of the beach and also includes all parts of the city. The exhibit will be decorated largely with fruit and will be a most attractive show. At the close of the meeting the committee from Anaheim met with the advertising committee of the chamber of commerce and completed the detailed arrangements.

W. R. Osborn of the Pacific Electric company introduced N. H. Robotham, manager of the Pacific Coast Motor company, who announced that his company plans to extend motor bus service through Huntington Beach to Long Beach. A committee consisting of John Barlow, Willis Warner and Dale M. Peters was named by the chairman to go into the matter with him and if satisfactory, to give his project the endorsement of the chamber of commerce.

D. W. Lane, general agent of the Pacific Electric at Long Beach, was then introduced, and in his remarks stated that the Pacific Electric intends to enter into a co-operative arrangement with the proposed bus line, so that people may come as far as Huntington Beach on the electric line and the remainder of the distance on the bus line, or vice versa. This will be a great convenience and may mean much to Huntington Beach merchants, it was declared. Announcement was made of the annual dinner of the Huntington Beach Chamber of Commerce to be held in the city auditorium May 11. There will be a program and the business of the meeting will be election of officers for the coming year. An invitation is extended to the public to attend this meeting.

President Manderville urged all members to be present at the P. E. A. banquet May 3 at 8:30 o'clock in the grammar school. There will be a program and installation of officers.

TODAY'S Horoscope

MAY 1, 1928

The constellation Taurus—the second sign of the Zodiac—will be tied outside your door until May 9th. If you were born about now, you have a stubborn disposition, proud, fond of opposition, but slow to get excited and equally slow to calm down again, with a disposition to harbor grudge. You have a stubborn determination and will reach your goal at any cost. Is it necessary to say that your first goal is Nicky's?

Movie Stars At Corona Del Mar For Ship Scenes

NEWPORT BEACH, May 1.—Sue Danile, prominent motion picture actress, and Neil Hamilton, well known actor, were among the celebrities at Newport Beach yesterday. The two cinema stars, supported by a cast of more than 200 persons, were busy all day yesterday on the rocks at Corona Del Mar filming a ship picture.

The picture, a comedy, features Miss Danile as a camera girl for a news reel company and shows her "sneaking" her opponent, Neil Hamilton, at every turn. The scenes taken here yesterday included a breeches buoy rescue from a tug boat, which was supposed to be a wrecked vessel.

DEVELOPMENT OF LIDA ISLE TO BEGIN SOON

NEWPORT BEACH, May 1.—Development of Lida Isle, formerly Parkinson island, is to start immediately, it was announced last night to the city council by W. T. Crittenden, wealthy subdivision, who purchased the island from the Parkinson syndicate. All improvements, including the construction of a bridge to the island, paving of streets, installation of water, gas, sewers and other public utilities will be made at one time, it was reported by Crittenden.

The financiers who is the owner of more than 100,000 acres of land in California and the owner of the Alexandria hotel in Los Angeles, predicted great development for the Newport harbor district within the next three years. A map of the island showing the subdivision plan was submitted to the city council for the approval of the body. Crittenden, John P. Elsbach, developer of the island and others connected with the project spoke. Several changes have been made in the island plans during the past week including the widening of streets from 20 feet to 28 feet, it was pointed out by the representatives of the subdivision.

Improvement work will include the dredging of more than 20,000 cubic yards of material, it was reported. The dredging work is to start at once. The final subdivision map which was presented to the city council last night is the culmination of 14 maps, it was explained by Elsbach. The developer pointed out that the final plan had the approval of the city planning experts.

That Newport Beach has the finest still water bay between San Francisco and San Diego, was the declaration of Crittenden. He declared that the possibilities of the harbor exceeded those of Catalina island.

"Newport bay has something the world ought to know about," Crittenden declared. He predicted that the island would be completely sold within three years and would be largely built up. The city council asked for one week in which to investigate the proposed map and make a decision regarding the project. It was pointed out that four members of the council had never seen the proposed subdivision map before.

Copies of the restriction plans for the island will be submitted to the council. No certain amount will be specified that any house must be built but the plans of all houses must be approved by a group of architects before the building can be constructed. A request for permission to build a landing pier on the eastern end of the island was made by representatives of the developers.

TALBERT

TALBERT, May 1.—Cubs and Boy Scouts of Talbert were represented at the jamboree held by Scouts of the county at the county fair grounds by the local Scoutmaster, the Rev. J. J. Woodson, and John Folker, Paul Penrod, Gerald Caldwell, John Ater, Paul Buckingham, LeRoy Buckingham, Charles Ishii, M. Masuda, William McDonald, K. Garcia, Joe Ishii, Lauren Miyola, D. Garcia, Oliver Cox, Adelbert Preston, Cleon Saunders and Jack Ellis.

Bushard road, from the Harper store corner in Talbert south to the ocean, is being graded and prepared for a coast of decomposed granite. S. E. Talbert's two sisters, Mrs. J. B. Irwin of the county park and Mrs. Joe Miller, and Mr. Miller of Huntington Beach were recent visitors in the Talbert home. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lamb and family, Mr. and Mrs. George Bushard, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Glaser, Miss Lucille Glaser, Harold Glaser, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Glaser, Miss Cecile McIntyre, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Glaser, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bushard and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wardlaw and family, of Talbert attended the Pioneer's dance at Huntington Beach last week. The next dance, announced for May 18, will be held after a barbecue.

LAND SUITS TO BE DROPPED BY BEACH COUNCIL

NEWPORT BEACH, May 1.—Suits against more than 75 property owners in the Newport Beach and Balboa sections of the city were ordered dismissed by the city council last night. A city ordinance ordering City Attorney Roland Thompson to withdraw the court actions was adopted.

The suits were launched more than four years ago to clear certain alleys in the city. The alleys, which were narrow, were crowded by buildings and the suits were designed to cause the property owners to move the buildings so as to allow machines to pass through. After the suits were started the alleys were cleared up by the property owners and the suits were never pressed.

Recently it was called to the attention of city councilmen here that the suits were clouding the title to several parcels of property and owners of the land asked that the matter be settled. After an investigation the suits were ordered dismissed.

A new electrical ordinance, prepared by a former city council, was voted down at the meeting of the city officials last night. City Electrician C. G. Rodgers recently reported unfavorable to the ordinance and in a roll call vote the council decided to keep the old electrical ordinance.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, May 1.—There will be a pot luck supper for Masons and their families Wednesday at 6:30 o'clock at the I. O. O. F. hall. There will be an educational program. C. R. Furr will deliver an address on "Crime in California."

G. AND L. LEASE

G. AND L. LEASE, May 1.—Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Ross entertained at a birthday dinner Friday night in observance of the birthday of his aunt, Miss Belle Ross; a cousin, Miss Alice Britton, and their little son, Charles. Miss Edith McNutt was a luncheon guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. White Sunday.

Miss Audrey Gover was a guest of Miss Maebelle Setters Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Pope and two sons, Bobby and Louis, spent Sunday in Los Angeles with friends.

Don Harvey, of Brea, spent Sunday as the guest of Calvin Varner. Mrs. L. F. Lemley and two sons, Glenn and Billy, spent Sunday in Placentia as the guests of Mrs. Rose Culp and family.

Mrs. Clea Messer went to Los Angeles Monday to meet her mother, Mrs. Frank Loyd.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank McElhaney and daughter, Lois, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Berry.

Miss Ruby White, of this place, was among those who attended the Ramona pageant Saturday from the Brea-Olinda high school. Miss Victoria Reed, of Brea, called on friends here Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. White called on friends in Bellflower recently. Mr. and Mrs. Archie Bishop and little daughter, of Los Angeles, with Howard Bishop, of Bakersfield, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Ross.

R. S. PATTERSON APPOINTED NEWPORT BEACH ENGINEER. TWO PATROLMEN QUIT JOBS

NEWPORT BEACH, May 1.—R. S. Patterson, well known Los Angeles engineer, who formerly was connected with harbor work here, was chosen city engineer by the city council last night. He succeeds Paul Kresely, who resigned a few weeks ago when a new city council took office. Patterson has been identified with a number of subdivision projects near Los Angeles.

Patterson is well qualified to handle all improvement work connected with the city, according to a report by Dr. Herman Himmer, chairman of the committee in charge of investigating applications for city engineer. Patterson was an acting engineer here several years ago when the county work was done in the harbor. He will receive a salary of $450 per month, the city council decided. It is understood that Patterson is to be given more duties, including the position of street superintendent.

The resignations of two policemen were accepted and two local men were appointed to the police force. Frank Truman and C. F. Elmer were the officers who resigned. George W. Callahan, of Balboa, and S. F. Taylor, of Newport Beach, were named to the police force. Arrangements were made to place a resident officer on Balboa island. The officer is to be on eight hour duty and will be subject to call at all times. A request for the officer was made by the Balboa Island Improvement association through G. W. Kittmiller, secretary.

An audit of city books will be made at once. Dr. Himmer called the attention of the city officials to the fact that it is the usual procedure to have an audit of the books made by some disinterested person when a change is made in the persons handling the books. He declared that the audit should be made in justice to the former city treasurer and auditor and in justice to the new official. The city council was presented with a detailed account of the condition of city finances when R. S. Briggs, former treasurer, auditor and deputy tax collector, retired from office. It was the first complete report of city finances ever presented to an incoming city council.

J. A. Gant, who was elected city treasurer recently, was later named deputy tax collector at a salary of $250 per month. In addition, two clerks are employed in the tax department at salaries totaling $275. The salaries are the same as those paid to the former deputy tax collector. The audit was placed in the hands of the finance committee with power to act.

A request that a fire station be built on Balboa island with a public comfort station and provision made for police headquarters in connection with the building, was made by the Balboa Island Improvement association. The request was referred to the fire committee, which will be assisted by the city engineer and the city attorney.

Suggestions for the improvement of the city auto camp ground were read to the council in a communication from R. B. Black, a frequent user of the camp grounds. Black reported in his letter that garbage conditions in the camp ground were bad and suggested that sinks be placed in convenient spots for the use of the campers. The city camp custodian was charged recently and some of the complaints have already been remedied, it was pointed out.

The police committee was authorized to purchase a new flag for the city flag pole. A request for the flag was made by Roland Hodgkinson, acting chief of police. A salary of $100 per month was asked of the city by Eugene Fenelon, city building and plumbing inspector. Fenelon in a letter to

Beach Houses In Demand, Council Hears

NEWPORT BEACH, May 1.—With the opening of the summer season, houses are filling up rapidly, it was reported to the city council last night. Stuart A. Gundiff, city water superintendent, requested the city officials to transfer funds from one department to another to allow the purchase of new meters. Gundiff explained that the city is out of water meters and the fund to purchase them is depleted. He stated that unless water meters were purchased immediately there would be no way of turning on water for the new arrivals. The transfer was authorized.

5 Held At Beach On Drunk Charges

NEWPORT BEACH, May 1.—Five persons were arrested here over the week end on charges of being intoxicated, it was reported today by Roland Hodgkinson, acting chief of police. The arrest of the men marks the second week-end campaign against drunkenness in the Newport Beach and Balboa districts of the city.

Four of the five arrested posted $25 bail and were released. They were Robert Kraig, 20, of Los Angeles; Durwood Moore, 24, and Glenn Moore, 21, of Long Beach, and J. C. Dunham, 21, of Los Angeles. Charles Elder, 18, of Los Angeles, was released from jail yesterday after paying a $25 fine on a similar charge.

Newport Church Arranges Dinner

NEWPORT BEACH, May 1.—Members of the Community Methodist church will enjoy a fellowship meeting and supper at the Balboa church tomorrow night, it was announced today. Mrs. R. Percay is in charge of the arrangements for the supper.

Following the meal a short program will be held and the official board of the church will hold a short business session. Tonight, the Rev. W. E. Stockton will present a number of motion pictures at the Newport Beach church. The pictures will include news events, comedy features and local films.

The city council, pointed to the many new fire proof business buildings which have been erected in the city since building ordinances have been enforced. He declared that had not the ordinances been enforced the buildings would probably have been constructed of wood.

Several requests for the transfer of business licenses were made of the city council. The body will meet again next Monday night.

CITY OFFICERS APPOINTED BY BEACH COUNCIL

HUNTINGTON BEACH, May 1.—C. P. Patton was named city recorder at the meeting of the city council last night. Patton succeeds Chris P. Fann in this office. Merwin Rosson was reappointed as city engineer at an increased salary.

Rosson has been given responsibility for the street department in addition to his duties as engineer. Henry Wirth was named assistant street superintendent under Rosson. It is reported that Rosson will be given broad powers in the street and engineering work. C. R. Furr was reappointed as city comptroller. Furr was recently elected city clerk.

The resignation of "Tex" Choat, chief of police, was tabled. J. K. Sergeant was reappointed fire chief. L. E. Mitchell, who has been serving as assistant city clerk, will not be retained in this position, the council decided, owing to a decrease in work in this department and also in conformity to the policy of economy that has been adopted by the present board.

A report from City Engineer Rosson regarding the repair of the pier was referred to the council as a whole. Scoutmasters I. H. Westmoreland and H. C. Benfield appeared before the council asking for a concession for the Boy Scouts to sell peanuts at the baseball games. The permit was granted.

C. W. Patrick, the local American Legion post, requested permission of the council to put on a Fourth of July celebration in the city and for the council to finance the same. The council asked Patrick to present the recommendations of the Legion in writing at the next meeting of the council. The matter was referred to the committee on music and promotion.

ORANGE MAN HURT

ORANGE, May 1.—Leon Shadel is recovering from injuries received when the steering knuckle of his car broke while he was driving down the Vista grade, over the week end. When the knuckle broke, the car veered off the side of the road dropping into a two-foot ditch. Shadel suffered severe bruises, a cut lip and a broken rib.

MOTHERS WILL BE HONORED BY ANAHEIM POST

ANAHEIM, May 1.—Appearance of James K. Fisk, adjutant of the department of California, American Legion, and celebration of Mother's day will mark the regular meeting of the Anaheim American Legion post to be held in the Legion clubhouse tonight. Commander J. Fred Sidebottom revealed this morning.

An address by Dr. Benjamin H. Haywood, pastor of the White Temple Methodist church, will be the outstanding feature of Mother's day program planned for the occasion, it is announced. Mothers of members are to be special guests of the evening.

Next Thursday evening the Anaheim post officers will put on the initiatory work for the Orange post in the new home of the latter post. Tonight's program will open with a 6:30 dinner.

ORANGE

ORANGE, May 1.—A. L. Voore hies has moved his family to Orange from Corona. Mr. Voore hies will have charge of the Daley store here. C. F. Dodge, former manager, expects to enter the business for himself.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Ross, of Los Angeles, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Bell, 459 South Grand street.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Chandlee, of the Orange inn, had as their guests over Sunday, their daughter, Mrs. Bernice Fulton, and Mrs. Chandler's mother, Mrs. J. F. Burns, of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Rowell, 759 West LaVeta street, left recently for a trip to the Grand Canyon.

Miss Mary Sheffer, bacteriologist at the Orange county hospital, was a week end guest of Miss Lois Hallman, Santa Barbara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hallman. Miss Hallman is interested in the same work.

Mrs. George Horton, 745 West Palmira street, is spending several days in Huntington Beach.

No one is safe!

Ball player or business man, society debutante or mother—every one of us, no matter who we are, may offend unknowingly.

Body odor...we may feel safe...and yet—

"BODY ODOR never troubles me," is what we tell ourselves.

But can we always be sure? Quick as we are to detect the faintest hint of odor in others, we cannot tell when we offend. For, once an odor becomes familiar to us, our own sense of smell becomes deadened to it.

Facts about body odor

We all perspire. If we didn't, we'd die. Even on cool days our millions of pores continually give off invisible perspiration—often as much as a quart of waste every 24 hours.

Whether we see it or not, this body moisture is always odorous.

Pores give off as much as a quart of waste every 24 hours—even on cool days.

Now, a purifying toilet soap. Its bland anti-septic lather keeps you safe from body odor.

And it never plays favorites. Failing to take precautions, we may all offend—no matter what our position in life may be.

How millions keep safe

Yet there is a simple way to be sure we're safe. Just wash and bathe often with the delightful toilet soap that millions enjoy—Lifebuoy—is deodorizing!

The same bland and abundant antiseptic lather that helps protect health by removing germs—prevents body odor by purifying pores. For complexions, too, Lifebuoy is marvelously beneficial. Millions find it ideal for every toilet purpose.

Note its hygienic scent

You will learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant clean scent, which tells you Lifebuoy purifies, yet which quickly evaporates after rinsing. Use Lifebuoy a week and you'll use it for life. Get some today.

The WOMAN'S DAY

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford are very, very sure that the old-fashioned dance is infinitely superior to the modern one. A news dispatch says that while en route to Europe under assumed names, Mr. Ford suddenly sprang to his feet at a ship's dance, said, "Folks, let me show you how much more fun you can have dancing like this," gave the old-fashioned tango to the orchestra, and with Mrs. Ford led the boys and girls.

Perhaps I'm overly squeamish, but this imposing of one's own preference upon other people seems to me rather poor taste, and it will take more than the Fords to convince me personally that the thin squaky tunes of "Turkey in the Straw" and the jig and prancings of the old dances are a bit preferable to the new.

SO SURPRISED!
A Chicago youth recently bought a marriage license before asking the girl to marry him. He seemed awfully surprised when she would not, and today mournfully reflects on his wasted license money. But, after all, why should the youth be so shocked at? In this modern world when men are more sought than seeking, it's not surprising that a youth should believe any girl would be only too happy to marry him.

MAKING WIVES OVER
A Chinese-American restaurant keeper recently brought to the Occident his Oriental bride. He announced that he will send her to college so that she may be "completely Americanized." This little masculine habit of making wives over till they conform to husbandly ideals of what a woman should be does not seem to be American only.

WED ON PEAKS
And continuing to speak of marriage, mountain guides of the Alps have just revived an old custom of being wed "up in the snows" on the highest peak which the plighted twin can scale. The reason for this is not given. Perhaps it's a symbol of the endurance test which matrimony is.

LIFE'S NICETIES
Hints On Etiquette

1. Is it customary nowadays for an engaged girl never to appear in public with any man except her fiancé?
2. If engaged couples continue having their own friends, what should they guard against?
3. If either one of an engaged couple knows undue jealousy over the other's friends, is it better to give up social events without each other's company?

THE ANSWERS
1. No.
2. Any misunderstanding between themselves or criticism from outsiders.
3. Certainly, an understanding should be reached on the subject.

When both the dwarfs were out of sight, the strange man eyed each Tinymite. "Well, who are you?" he finally said. "I've never seen you before. Like real nice lads you all appear. Now, tell me, do you live near here? If you're sightseeing visitors, I've lots of things in store."
Then Scouty raised his little head. "We're Tinymites," he proudly said. "We travel all around the world to see things that are new. We never harm a thing, you see. We're just as careful as can be. We're very glad to meet you, but please tell us, who are you?"

such. "Just help yourselves," exclaimed the man. "Now, don't be scared. Eat all you can, but to be sure you don't get sick, you'd best not eat too much."
They found tomatoes, nice and red, and nice fresh cabbage by the head. "Oh, my, but this is mighty good," said Scouty with a smile. "That proves how good are vegetables," replied the man. "I also have a flower patch where I'll take you after while."
The Tinies ate till they were through and then their friend said, "All of you hop in my old wheelbarrow and then please sit very still. We'll now go to my big flower bed." "Oh, that sounds great," wee Coppy said. And then the gardener pushed them very quickly over a hill.

"The Patent Leather Kid," now at the Yost Broadway theater, following its sensational run on Broadway, has ridden in racing automobiles, airplanes, balloons and speeding locomotives, but he got the greatest thrill of his life when he took his first ride in a tank.
Barthelmess was with "The Patent Leather Kid" company at Camp Lewis, Washington, when he was taken over the trenches and through pine woods in a tank. When the wild ride ended, he insisted on driving it, and was accommodated.
They cleared the field for him, but Barthelmess controlled the unwieldy machine from the start, and when he descended from its grimy interior, suggested an obstacle race of tanks through broken country as the thrill of the century.

students attending the Lenin school and several of the American residents of the Lux hotel, headquarters of the foreign Communists. These Americans, in fact, are responsible for the spread of the game. With the passing of winter, plans have been made for a series of outdoor games, various sport organizations co-operating.

Even the Russian women like it. Two women's baseball teams have been formed at the Physical Culture Institute. The men and women at this institute are preparing to teach physical culture in the Soviet schools. Their interest in the game therefore means that they will carry it to tens of thousands of boys and girls in the near future.

The first game of baseball played in Moscow took place last year, outdoors. At that time unfortunately, a foul ball hit one of the spectators, who thereupon poured onto the field and nearly lynched the players. There was some agitation against the sport as dangerous for the onlookers. By now, however, the public is reconciled to the American import.

One of the main difficulties has been the lack of baseball paraphernalia. Baseball enthusiasts here have to depend on friends coming via Berlin to bring them bats and balls and gloves purchased in the Berlin branch of an American sporting goods concern.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 1. — A little school established nearly 30 years ago by a rich woman has now been declared closed because it has had no pupils for three years.

The school was founded by Mrs. William C. Parsons in Yavapai county, Arizona. Gradually a little town known as McCabe grew up around the school. The town was populated by workers in the neighboring mines.

After the school closed down and there were no families left to send children to the school.

Mrs. Parsons has died. The executors of her estate explained the situation to Judge Thomas F. Graham of San Francisco by saying that the school had been officially "closed" and the funds be set free for other investment.

ENGLAND SEES ARMAMENT CUT IN SHORT TIME

LONDON, May 1.—Despite the unimpaired reaction by a section of the American press against Great Britain's latest tentative proposals for the reduction in armaments, there is a growing conviction in England that real progress will be made on the basis of the further limitation of naval armaments.

In the face of the approaching presidential election in the United States it is likely that Great Britain will let the matter for the time being rest where it stands, since it is considered in influential circles that nothing would be lost by making naval armaments an important item in the election campaign.

Such an issue, it is urged, might easily be converted into an appeal to patriotism, and the more common-sense side of disarmament left out.

It is, therefore, improbable that the coming months will see any radical new proposals brought forward, or any great external change in the present situation, but under the surface, it is believed here, powerful factors are working toward a more favorable atmosphere for an agreement for further naval disarmament than surrounded the ill-fated Colville conference at Geneva.

In the first place, the great mass of the English people are coming to a better understanding of the problem of naval armaments which confronts the people of the United States. In the second place it is felt here the people of the United States are arriving at a better understanding of Great Britain's naval position.

That there is a third point which has recently come to light, and which may have a vitally important bearing on providing a solution to the problem, is the growing differences of opinion on the size and armament of cruisers, which was the vital point on which the recent Geneva naval conference collapsed.

This is the statement on March 29 by Count Clausel, the French delegate at Geneva, that conversations are in progress between the American and British governments with regard to some very delicate questions, which may shortly allow "some most satisfactory results" to be presented to the Disarmament Commission.

Back of this carefully guarded statement, it is said here, there is reason to believe that progress has been made toward reconciling the British and French views as to the size of cruisers, and the extent of their armament.

If this is the case, and if this reconciliation of the divergent Franco-British view points can be effected, it will have an extremely important bearing on the ability of Great Britain to revise her conception of her naval requirements.

In these conversations include Japan and Italy—as it is believed they do—the possibility of soon reconciling the divergent Anglo-American viewpoints becomes even greater.

For France, it is recalled, has been steadily insisted that her naval tonnage should be limited by total tonnage only, while Great Britain has desired limitations by the size and number of units in each category. France's insistence upon her right to build many, or few vessels, as she deemed fit, limited only by the total tonnage allotted her, and her opposition to restricted large numbers of submarines, was the basis of the dispute.

It is, therefore, on the basis of this hint that France and England

Officers Divide Gift Of $50,000

SHANGHAI, May 1.—Five members of the municipal police force became $10,000 richer today, and an equal number of kidnappers were out exactly $100,000 each as the result of a foiled kidnapping plot here.

Tan Liu-tsang, wealthy tea merchant, was kidnaped by a gang of five men, who forced him into a motor car. The next day one of the kidnappers called on Tan's wife and told her of the abduction, demanding $500,000.

Mrs. Tan informed the police. On the third day she was informed by telephone that unless she paid over the money that night her husband would be killed.

Mrs. Tan obtained the full $500,000 and drove to the place where she was to meet the kidnappers. She was unaware that a police car was following her.

On Nanking road the car halted and after a brief wait was approached by three men. While they were engaged in conversation with Mrs. Tan the police rushed up and seized all three.

The three confessed to being members of the gang and disclosed the whereabouts of Tan. He was liberated within an hour and the remaining kidnappers were arrested.

Tan expressed his appreciation by handing W. G. Clarke, director of the criminal intelligence department of the police, a check for $50,000 to be divided among the five police officers responsible for his liberation.

ZAPATA DEEDS RECALLED ON ANNIVERSARY

By GEFORD P. FINE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

MEXICO CITY, May 1.—Commemoration in April of the anniversary of the death of General Emiliano Zapata has awakened a flood of stories about the man who, along with Francisco Villa, was perhaps one of the most extraordinary characters produced by the revolution. Like Villa, Zapata was a man of amazing daring with a record, which if the stories about him are true, few ever will succeed in emulating.

Zapata, it is said, was almost illiterate. The act of merely signing his name required elaborate preparations—rolling up his sleeve, sweeping the table clear of all impediments and then several minutes of sweaty labor. Yet for two months in 1914 Zapata and his ragged band that swept up from the state of Morelos were in control of the capital.

Of all the astonishing stories about Zapata and his followers, perhaps the most incredible is that of an incident connected with their triumphal march into the capital. The Zapatas were marching down the Paseo Reforma, firemen from several stations were responding to a fire alarm.

The Zapatistas, gaining in terror at the onrushing red-shirted demons in the chariots led by foaming horses, decided they were forced upon to resist the invasion and killed 30 of them. It was a long time before the city could fill up the ranks of its firemen as the majority of those left alive turned in resignations.

One of the most colorful events of Zapata's career was his meeting with General Francisco Villa at Xochimilco in December, 1914. The meeting was planned as the beginning of an entente cordiale. However, Villa arrived armed to the teeth and surrounded by a bodyguard. According to a foreign observer who was standing behind Zapata, Villa, as he embraced his companions in arms, felt carefully of his hips.

Zapata's men were noted for their ruthlessness and careless disregard of their own lives and others. Much of the fighting between the Carranza and Zapata forces occurred in or on the edge of the capital. Zapatistas bombarded the Mexico City Country club with cannon and made practically a wreck of it. The golf course was for a time the battleground and the dead of both sides are today buried in one part of it. Days after the struggle had ended the club's golf professional, playing an early round, came upon a gruesome reminder of the person of a dead Zapatista lying in a sand trap.

General Alvaro Obregon, later president and now a presidential candidate again, put an end to Zapata's army in a battle at Puebla in which between five and six thousand were killed. From then on Zapata's life was more or less that of a bandit in his native stamping grounds in the state of Morelos.

He was finally smothered by a special contingent of troops sent for that purpose. Pretending to have turned to his side, these troops proved their loyalty to him by capturing a town. Shortly afterward, in a ravine, Zapata and his bodyguard were wiped out.

To Zapata in these days are credited the origin of some of the agrarian reforms. In the ceremonies conducted in April in his honor, the chief praise bestowed upon him was for his work as representative of the agrarians. His alleged ignorance and humble origin are not forgotten but extolled.

As a genuine proletarian, Zapata's claim to fame was perhaps never better illustrated than by another story about him. Listening to a conversation between Zapata and Villa in a Mexican City restaurant, a Mexican reporter overheard Zapata say to Villa:

"The trouble with men like Carranza is that they don't understand men like us. Men like Carranza sleep in beds!"

Ship To Sail Tuesday On 3 Week Voyage

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Eight scientists will sail from here next Tuesday on the non-magnetic yacht, Carnegie, to spend three years on a trip around the world. The 110,000-mile cruise is under direction of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

From the years between 1909 and 1921 the Carnegie made six voyages, covering 200,000 miles in a magnetic and electric survey of the oceans.

Now, after a long lay off the ship will go forth once more on a quest for unusual scientific information. The crew numbers 17.

England, Germany and Iceland are the first intended ports of call. Winter in Pacific.

As the sun goes southward next fall, the Carnegie will work south to the West Indies and Panama, spending next winter in the South Pacific visiting the Society Islands, Easter Islands, and Easter, and crossing north again to Japan and California next summer.

And so on around the world, following the sun in order to avoid storms and delays due to wintry weather and to improve the conditions for making her investigations.

Among the places to be visited after leaving California are Honolulu, Samoa, New Zealand, Cape Horn, South Georgia, South Africa, Ceylon, India, Western Australia, across the South Pacific again and around the Horn to Buenos Aires, Argentina, St. Helena, Azores, Madeira, and back to Washington September, 1921.

Purpose of Cruise

The aims of the cruise are magnetic, geophysical, and oceanographic. The expedition will make a complete program as studies of magnetic, electrical and oceanographic conditions.

"Perhaps the most fascinating study connected with the sea," Capt. Auld said, "is the multitudinous life found in all oceanic waters from the surface down to the deepest abyss yet explored. Physical and chemical changes in the ocean are having profound influence upon marine life, its variety, its amount and its distribution. A knowledge of these influences will contribute in many ways not only to the study of evolutionary processes taking place in the sea but also to the practical problem of economic use of the ocean's food supply.

"The problems in marine biology are so many and so far-reaching that it has been necessary to confine our attention chiefly to micro-biology, to determine the abundance and distribution of the so-called grasse of the sea, the plankton, and other small organisms such as diatoms, copepods, and foraminifera, which ultimately constitute the food supply of fishes and so for our own Friday dinner table."

To Dive Among Fishes

"A diving helmet is a part of our equipment, so that in warm, clear, tropical waters we may descend 30 to 50 feet below the surface among the fishes, learn how they live and describe the wonders of the underwater world."

The scientists who have been selected to make the investigations are: Captain J. P. Auld, commander, and chief of scientific staff; Wilfred C. Parkinson, senior scientific officer (atmospheric electricity and photography); Oscar W. Torrey, navigator and executive officer (magnetism, navigation, and meteorology); F. M. Soule, observer and electrical expert (magnetism and geophysical oceanography); H. E. R. Selwell, chemist and biologist (oceanography); J. H. Paul, surgeon and observer (medical work, meteorology, and oceanography); W. E. Scott, observer (navigator and commander); Lawrence A. Jones, radio operator and observer (radio conditions and communication).

Dog Comes Home In 500-Mile Trip

MINDEN, May 1.—Last summer "Tony," Alameda dog belonging to Dixie Virginia Samples, 3, and Marjorie Ann Samples, 4, of Minden, strayed from the family car while they were vacationing at Brimley, Minn., 500 miles from home.

The girl and her parents mourned the dog as dead or hopelessly lost until recently he trotted up to the door whining and barking joyously. It had taken the dog nine months, and it was estimated he must have traveled thousands of miles getting home.

Tony's feet were sore and his claws worn off. He was gaunt and hungry. He bore evidence of having been poisoned twice and fed powdered glass once.

Tony has been in the Samples family since he was six weeks old, and will remain in the family until he dies a natural death, all members agree.

PICNIC ENJOYED

ORANGE, May 1.—The young people of the Christian society enjoyed a picnic at Orange County park Saturday. They were accompanied by Mrs. D. D. McDonald, wife of the pastor of the church. A hike in the hills followed the dinner and games. Those included in the group were: Willie Macintosh, Marie Bevine, Ruth Hines, Turley, Mildred Kilgore, Josephine MacDonald, Joseph Turner, William Macintosh, Delbert Beave, Francis Todd, Robert Gordon and John MacDonald.

Old Time Parade Feature Of G. O. P. Convention Plans

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 1.—A "wide open" political parade on the night before the Republican national convention opens in Kansas City will furnish an exciting beginning.

Everything but fireworks will be sanctioned for use in the parade, which will be separated into groups favoring various presidential candidates. It is expected that rivalry between factions will result in enthusiasm comparable only to the days of the flambeau parades.

Torches and noise makers will be an important part of each delegate's equipment, and banners will be seen in profusion.

The very size of the parade will assure it a place of importance on the roster of the delegate's convention program, it was said.

At the head of the political column will be 10 floats. Each float will bear a likeness of a noted Republican president and the "chariot" will be decorated to correspond with conditions as they existed when the president held office.

Following these will be floats of local civic organizations, constructed especially for the event.

As the parade makes its way through the heart of Kansas City the sky will be illuminated with star bombs and colored balls of fire. The procession will march under the most elaborate street decorations ever planned in Kansas City.

The national colors, the American eagle and the G. O. P. elephant will hold prominent places in the decorative scheme. More than 100 blocks of the business district will be decorated for the convention.

Inasmuch as national flag day is June 14—two days after convention opening—convention week in Kansas City has been designated flag week and the colors will be displayed during the entire week as on flag day.

Financial and Market News

NEW YORK STOCKS

(By The Wall Street Journal)

NEW YORK, May 1.—The stock market operations today were characterized by a general upward movement when call money eased off from the renewal rate of six per cent. Many issues reached new highs for the year, or longer. Speculators made the best gains, while conservative players insisted on higher prices for their utilities, rubbers and motors.

Electric Auto Light at one time went up more than 12 points and it held more than two-thirds of this gain in the motor group General Motors reached pronounced strength, rising more than two points.

JAPAN TAKES A HAND IN CHINA

Now Japan is in the attitude of interference with the Chinese civil war. It appears that orders were given by Japan that the railroad and communication between Shanghai and Tsing Tao should be left intact for the protection of Japanese interests. When the generalissimo of the Southern army, General Chiang Kai-Shek, appeared at Minghai on this railroad, however, he immediately cut the lines of communication both of the road and of the telegraph and it was done as a part of his activity against the Northern army. Japan is sending a force with machine guns to repair the damage and will probably encounter the Southern army and a real conflict may ensue which will embroil Japan and the Southern army in general hostilities.

We believe this attitude of Japan is indefensible. Whether it is done to defeat the Southern nationalists in their movement, because of a determination that they shall not win and establish a government that will aid in putting China in the line of progress, or whether it is done simply for the purpose of protecting their own interests, she has no right, on either score, to participate in the contest being carried on as a civil war in China, and throw her forces to one side or the other which may be the determining factor in the contest. There are conditions under which interference for the protection of life and property by a foreign government may be necessary and wise. This is under conditions where the difficulty is an unexpected one and so serious and sudden that the ones affected have not the time to remove themselves or their property out of the danger zone and their government has immediately at hand the means of protection.

But none of these conditions obtain in China at the present time. Civil war has been carried on there for several years. Missionaries and business men of the western nations have had notice served on them to remove themselves and their belongings from danger zones. This is not only to insure their own safety but to save the foreign government from any obligation to interfere in any manner which might be construed as undue interference in the internal affairs of another nation. Japan apparently is refusing to follow out such a program. It is entirely possible, unless she is doing this with the tacit approval of the United States, Great Britain, and others that there will be serious questions raised concerning this activity by Japan. This is one of the things that the strong nations are always doing with the weak. It is not enough for them to determine their own course of action, they must also interfere with another nation which is struggling toward the light and tell them, "thus far you can go, and no farther." China may be acting wisely or unwisely. The outcome of the civil conflict in China may be helpful to our own ideas of what civilization should have, or it may not, but in any case the Chinese people should work out their own problem and they never will rise to the point of a capable, self-respecting nation and take their proper place among the great powers of the earth, until they have done so.

"SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS" RETIRES

Colonel Lindbergh, yesterday flew his "Spirit of St. Louis" on its last journey to Washington where the ship will be immediately placed in the Smithsonian Institution; there to remain as an object of interest to visitors probably for centuries to come. It is an extremely unusual incident.

It is common to think of the machinery which evidences progress being taken to the Smithsonian Institution or the British Museum either at the close of its career, or the death or extreme age of the user or inventor. Not so this airplane. Colonel Lindbergh is a youth, not yet twenty-seven years of age. His airplane has not reached the obsolescence age. It has not yet become a curiosity in that way. It has flown 40,000 miles and Colonel Lindbergh said, when in Washington with it that it is good for 40,000 more. It is in practically perfect condition mechanically. It will be in condition for a long time and could probably be put in condition, if undisturbed, a century from now to make a flight. We are glad that it is to be taken from the National Guard hangar and placed in our national museum, the Smithsonian Institution.

Unquestionably Lindbergh has a real affection for this airship. In it he has flown more than 40,000 miles. In it he has had a solitude which he has not had very much of since his flight to Europe. In it he undoubtedly had experiences in his own mind that cause in associations to have a deep meaning to him. Hope and fear and ambition and confidence and dependence and many other things are associated with this plane that in company with Lindbergh made up the "We." Few things in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington will be of more interest than will the "Spirit of St. Louis."

ELUSIVE MARRIAGES

Wives will soon begin to wonder if they are still married, if the habit of getting secret divorces grows a little more in this country. A woman in New York has just learned that her husband, an alienist on the staff of Compton Sanatorium this state, obtained a decree of divorce at Reno last October and the next day married a nurse with whom he is living now in Compton. The original "Mrs." has just discovered it and is going to try to set it aside.

In another case of similar character, just discovered in Chicago, a man obtained a divorce from his wife some five years ago but didn't inform her, just kept it for emergency purposes, to use if he ever got tired of the partnership. A telephone call from her husband's attorney was the means of informing her that she had been living with a man who had divorced her five years ago.

These instances are among many that would come from the state legislatures a uniform divorce law in the United States and it would also suggest the value of publicity in these as well as other cases.

ART APPRECIATION

The Fourth District Parent-Teachers Association, our own district, has been fostering, for the past several years, a movement for art appreciation study in the schools. Traveling exhibits of the work of Orange county artists centered at Laguna Beach, have been sent to various schools in the county. Recently the exhibits have been requested by principals of schools in San Diego county and the cities of Long Beach and Los Angeles.

Hitherto the expense of sending the art on tour has been met by the Parent-Teachers Associations but several school authorities in the county who see the value of the exhibits are including the fees necessary for the exhibits in their school budgets.

There will certainly be some glory to Orange county and the Fourth District Parent-Teachers Association when this movement for the inculcation of art appreciation through the schools has spread throughout the United States as its merit makes it inevitable that it will. But in addition to once again "putting ourselves on the map," as those who are pushing this movement are doing for us, there is the intrinsic value of art appreciation itself.

It is maintained by some that taste is an individual matter, that a man's artistry as displayed in his reactions to things, in the development of his home, and grounds is his own affair. But none likes to be laughed at and the individual who expresses himself in the crude style of the barbarian among civilized people really appears ridiculous and childish. It is one of the objects of education to develop in the individual an appreciation and favorable reaction to those things in literature and art and music that have been adjudged by those most familiar with such matters, and the hand of time, to be the finest and best.

Art appreciation has been neglected in the United States largely because of the impossibility of exhibiting to scholars the best of art. A few good prints are the most that many very good and large schools can offer as examples of fine art. Here in Orange county we are fortunate in having famous artists and an art association at Laguna Beach furnishes lovely and inspiring examples of the best art. Undoubtedly the appreciation of this work and movement will increase with the years.

CRIME AND THE INDIVIDUAL

Judge Frank Murphy of Detroit, speaking before a group of club women recently, had some rather pertinent things to say about the crime situation.

Discussing the great growth in arrests and convictions in late years, the jurist said:

"The solution, if we are to keep crime down to the minimum, is not in law but in developing in the hearts and minds of the people those ideals and capacities that teach self-control. This is the task of the homes, the schools and the churches."

Rather well said, we think. We can't reform ourselves by starting to work from the outside in. Every betterment that we ever hope to get must begin with the individual.

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

THE MUSICIAN

In the apartment across the way a boy plays scales on his violin. It is Saturday. The sun is shining and the sky is that high blue vision of dreaming beauty that calls us all to come out and see and feel and be glad we were born of earth.

The boys are gathering in the playground that edges the park. Some are armed with bats and others are twirling balls while proud ones smack their hands into big hits and spread their legs in true catcher-pitcher fashion.

On the other side of the ridge the football crowd is gathering. Each lad wears his own style of uniform. I see one with a Princeton sweater and gray flannel shorts. He is gesturing wildly to a lad who wears a huge leather helmet and the suit he wore in school yesterday. A whiff of a lad, quick as mercury and as slender as a grasshopper dribbles a ball. The boy across the shaft plays scales on his violin.

Down the grassy slope between the baseball squads and the football gang comes a man leading a pony. Behind him a boy, leading three piebald ponies. "Hey, mister, give us a ride." The place is full of arms and legs, glimpses of ponies capering, more waving arms and legs. The group scatters, there is a cheer, and away go the riders up the slope. Those lucky lads who had a nickel are galloping off to some high dream height. Those who hadn't the price are back on the field heartily awaiting the ball. The sound of scales played warily on a violin drifts in through my window. How long must he play the miserable things? Why can't he out with the rest?

Ah, there's something happening out in the park. An airplane is hovering above the heads of the lads. They jump up and down and shout. They fall over each other and snatch from each other's hands, laughing loudly at some delightful idea. The man in the plane dropped something as he floated by. Only a few circulars. But think of them coming down out of the air right at your feet. Maybe it was Lindie. Maybe it was O. Joy. The scales cease for a moment. I see a troubled boyish face peering out at the park between the curtains. Somebody calls and the face disappears. The scales, more weary than before, begin again.

The long delightful morning speeds away. The boys and girls in the park go off in twos and threes and stree, heads together, feet tripping, voices intermingled. They shout, they push, they argue, friends twine arms and march together singing. The glad morning has been spent in happy play. The children, weary with play, comfortably hungry, at peace with the world, straggle home for lunch. The boy playing scales on the violin is plainly weary, too. But there are no signs of joy in his weariness. The scales are off key. Far off.

Somebody speaks sharply. The howl comes along the strings making a crying sound, a wall of despair. I hear the boy crying: "I don't care. Why do I have to stay in playing this old violin? I hate it."

Small blame to him. That is not the way musicians are made. You can make violin players like that, maybe. But musicians? No. Never. A musician must know and feel and thrill to all life. A child must play as a happy child on Saturday mornings.

Now That It Is History

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

THE TEST

They are going to feed upon whisky and gin
And if they get lit now and then
It will prove, we are told, that the creatures are kin—
And, it may be, forbears of men.
There were no anthropologists, jotting down notes
When the apes, then arrayed in long tails
And chattering blithely in guttural notes
Were roaming the forest clad daisies
And so we have got to coral them today
To learn if they act in a human like way.

If the ape sips his liquor beneath a broad palm,
Drinking all that he cares to imbibe,
And still remains placid, and quiet and calm
In the midst of his simian tribe,
We shall have to trace farther the family line
To find where we humans began,
And where we must look for the very first sign
Of the earliest traces of man.
For man, though at present he's pretty hard boiled,
Cannot lap up liquor without getting offed.

But if it is found that an ape will arise
When he's tossed off a couple, or three
With his features arrayed in delighted surprise
And embark on a regular spree
Returning for more when his thirst is dry
And swallow the rest of the case,
This action, so we are informed, will supply
The proof that he founded our race.
No longer we'll need o'er this problem to bicker
If we find that the ape can get loaded on liquor.

OFF TO A GOOD START

As must have been pleased and surprised when he got the

UNCERTAIN BUSINESS

It is never safe to count delegates before they are pledged.

ABSENT TREATMENT

Mr. Coolidge doesn't go up to the Capitol to talk to Congress as Mr. Wilson, but he never leaves it in doubt as to what he thinks of it.

Dr. Crane's Friendly Talk

By Dr. Frank Crane

MAY DAY

It is the first day of May and something is stirring in the blood.
No matter how old and settled we are, we always feel it when May comes around.

When we were boys the fishing pools and the swimming holes and all outdoor things were beckoning.
Nature comes back with a rush in spring and everybody feels it one way or another.

We long to get out of the stuffy house and range the open spaces. The highway calls us. Somehow these gray roads press claiming an open life now seem to pry through us into our hearts.
May day in Europe has often been synonymous with some uprising of the laboring class. They feel the urge for better things. They sense the depressing effect of stultifying labor. The impulse of humanity for freedom springs up in them.

Spring appeals to something in us that defies all traditions, customs and conventions, and lures a man back to get in touch with nature.

It is the season of outdoors and a judicious use of outdoors will cure almost any disease. Most of our physical troubles, and our mental ones, too, arise from sedentary habits and close confinement in heated rooms.

Most sports were made in closed chambers. That is why they are so beneficial.
If they had been made out of doors under the green tree perhaps they would have said something different about the God of nature and about our human obligations one to another.

It is a good plan to go with your family out of doors. Don't let the youngsters get all the benefit of the open sunshine. Go to be pleases yourself and play a little in the thick grass. The ones that you get from the out of doors will do you good when you get back into the house again.

The whole excursion will refresh you and infuse new life into those natural instincts of love that you have for your family.
Artificial restraints will seem tame. It is a far cry from a good game of baseball out in the pasture lot to an evening at a night club. The one leaves the blood fresh, the nerves not frayed and the mind clear. You are ready for business the next day. The other leaves you wishing you had never been born and reflecting upon the beauty of all things.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By Glenn Frank

Before many weeks have passed, which, although the farmer could thousands upon thousands of tired Americans will turn their backs upon the stress and strain of the year's work and go to the woods for the healing medicine of rest and recreation.

If trees had tongues, they would,
I am sure, turn all these tired va-cacionists into ardent apostles of reforestation.

Here are some of the things I think the trees would say:
You have come to us to renew your bodies and refresh your spirits. Your carefree laughter floats up through the cool forest air to our singing leaves and swaying branches. But we are a little lonely and sad, for we trees are a dying race.

Before your fathers came to carve a new civilization out of our heart, the kindly Indian fought his battles and played his games under our canopies, but he did not seriously molest us. We were a great and growing race. We were rooted in 32,000,000 acres of this land. We were the proud primeval forest. But now, as untouched forest, we cannot cover as much as 140,000,000 acres. There is a younger generation of us growing up—you call these children of ours second growth timber—but these saplings, too, often cut down before their prime, cover not more than 150,000,000 acres.

We are dying four times as fast as we are being born again.
We look longingly toward the almost 100,000,000 acres of land

Rewards Of Genius
Are Seldom Ample

San Bernardino Sun

A few days ago there died in Paris in extreme poverty and at the age of 37 years, the man who invented the vanadium steel process, from which the world has benefitted to the extent of billions of dollars. Not a dollar came to him from that invention. It was only one of many scientific discoveries he made during an active laboratory life of half a century, and during all that time he was barely able to get along and in the last score of years he has lived in poverty and neglect.

While this may be considered an extreme case, a survey of the field of scientific discovery reveals very few of the many thousands engaged in it who have been rewarded for their work at all proportionally to its value. This is an age of chemistry. Scarcely a thing we eat, wear or use is not the product of the chemist, either in the form of original discovery or great improvement. We have but to look back a single generation and note the new things we have and the better quality of the old things, to realize that the hand of the chemist has been in them all, and not alone his hand, but those of others who have devoted their lives to science of varied sorts.
To most of those who have thus blessed the world the satisfaction of achievement has been their chief reward. In dollars and cents they have been paid but little. Even in worldly honors their reward has been meager indeed. The desire to achieve, the joy of accomplishment, the pleasure of creating, the urge to do with no thought of gain, constitute the reward of the great workers of the world.
The human soul expands in unselfish activity, and that expansion is its chief reward and a greater one than any the world can give in material things. After all, we are ourselves our greatest achievement, be it small or great.
No worldly honor and no material advantage can equal the expansion of the human soul through achievement.

Offers For Athletes

Riverside Enterprise

A Los Angeles sports writer says of two high school sprinters who are about the fastest in the country and happen to be in Glendale and Los Angeles high schools, respectively, that "each has had scores of offers from different universities." In fact, the statement was made as a compliment to the two young men. Why didn't the writer go into further details and say what the offers are and why they are made?

There are universities that have a suspicious record of success in securing attendance of famous prep school athletes and one is often constrained to ask how it is all brought about. We are certain that there are many universities that make no bid whatever for athletes or any other students, being content to take their chances with the raw material that naturally comes from the schools that feed them their freshman students.
One would suppose that if universities are really in the business of going after promising material, they would make a bid for worthy students of high scholastic prominence, who give promise of making a name for themselves in the academic rather than the athletic department.

The statement was made by the writer who has quoted that one of the athletes, the much talked of Wyatt of Glendale, high school, that despite his "many offers" from other parts of the country he is determined to stay in California and leave toward U. S. C. at Stanford.

Well, California, what have you to offer?

For The Pacific

Oakland Tribune

That Institute of Pacific Relations has been a more or less formal organization of men and women qualified to lead and stimulate discussion, has taken on definite and official status with the forming here of the San Francisco Bay region committee of the American council of the parent body. The nation has learned from the two meetings held within reach of the society and appreciates the fact that to the most widely known men and women in the purpose of the Institute there is that which is of particular interest to all who live on this continent.
The local committee is designated as the nucleus of what is designed to be a far-flung organization "to clear the public mind of historical rubbish and substitute therefor a comprehension of the realities which establish the Pacific as the seat, for generations to come, of the greatest uninterrupted advancement of a century."
That the Institute, with two sessions held in Honolulu, has established a clearing house which is recognized as rendering high service is promise of what will develop.
